

Enterprise Architecture (401) aligns technological and structural strategies with the overall IT strategy (400), guiding digital transformation initiatives (410) to ensure they align with business objectives. EA (401) helps organizations adapt to market disruptions by enabling agility and responsiveness, providing the structure and blueprint for IT infrastructure (450). Poor management of IT infrastructure can lead to technical debt (460). The eIDAS regulation (449) establishes the framework for electronic identification (440), ensuring interoperability and security. The Competence Framework (421) ensures that the workforce's skills align with the IT strategy (400) and defines necessary skills, enabling individuals to apply knowledge and skills (420) to achieve intended results.