

Governance [113] shapes corporate culture [117], ensures compliance [130], and establishes risk management [140] and management systems [151]. Corporate culture [117] influences stakeholder perception and supports risk management [140]. Compliance [130], managed by the CCO [139], mitigates threats [142] and ensures regulatory adherence. Risk management [140], aided by corporate culture [117] and integrated with ERM [149], identifies and assesses threats [142]. Stakeholders [104], mutually influenced by corporate culture [117], impact organizational decisions. ERM [149] integrates with risk management [140] for a holistic approach. The management system [151], within the governance framework [113], contributes to organizational maturity [159].